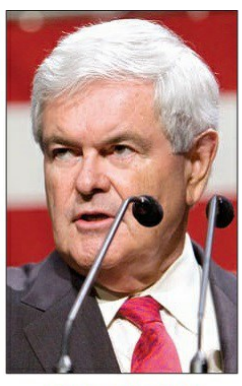
American Free Press
Vol XI #26 June 27, 2011 americanfreepress.net

Page 15, AMERICAN FREE PRESS * June 27, 2011 * Issue 26 *
AMERICANFREEPRESS.NET * BEHIND THE SCENES

WILLIAM KRISTOL
Grand wizard of neo-cons.

DAVID BROOKS
Former Kristol underling.



NEWT GINGRICH
Slick political operator.

SARAH PALIN
Zionist supremacist.

`American Exceptionalism' Just More NWO Rhetoric

By Michael Collins Piper

During the 2012 election campaign, you'll probably be hearing a lot about "American exceptionalism," particularly from the Republican presidential candidates.

Newt Gingrich has made the concept a centerpiece of his campaign, and Gingrich's wife — the current one, that is — has produced a documentary on the topic. Mitt Romney's campaign book is entitled No Apology: The Case for American Greatness. Sarah Palin's book, America by Heart, has a chapter entitled "America the Exceptional." And former Sen. Rick Santorum and Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty have also been heard touting the topic.

But don't be fooled by rhetoric that has a lot of patriotic appeal. In fact, the concept of American exceptionalism — and a related theme known as national greatness conservatism — are really modern-day propaganda masks for old-fashioned Trotskyite communism: rapacious imperialism and internationalism now wrapped in the American flag, but no different from the age-old dream of a world imperium — a global government. Many call it the New World Order.

The wizards who conjured up these themes are three key figures in the so-called neo-conservative movement:

• William Kristol, founding editor of The Weekly Standard, long published by Zionist billionaire Rupert Murdoch;

• David Brooks, a former Kristol underling at the Standard and now a columnist for The NewYork Times, and;

• Marshall Wittmann, a Jewish Trotskyite-turned neo-conservative and regular Standard contributor.

Kristol and Brooks began their crusade for national greatness conservatism with a Sept. 15, 1997 Wall Street Journal article that urged Americans to "reinvigorate the nationalism of Alexander Hamilton, Henry Clay and Teddy Roosevelt."

And during the 2000 presidential campaign, Wittmann chimed in with a lengthy piece in the Standard promoting John McCain, hailing McCain as a tribune of national greatness conservatism and as a modern-day Theodore Roosevelt.

Although many remember the first President Roosevelt as a symbol of American greatness, the ugly truth that the controlled media ignores is that it was "TR" who — even before Woodrow Wilson — began calling upon the American people to sacrifice their lives and treasure in the cause of global conquest, ostensibly in the name of bringing peace to the planet.

This is not nationalism. It is internationalism, advancing the theme that the United States should act as a world policeman promoting some undefined dream of democracy, which has now become the rallying cry of the modern Zionist-Trotskyite schemers.

So TR was an internationalist, and no true American nationalist should look to TR as a model of American greatness. Yet, TR's spirit is said to underlie national greatness conservatism and American exceptionalism.

More recently, in the Nov. 12, 2010 issue of The New York Times, the aforementioned Brooks — sounding the call for a new centrist movement in American politics — claimed that a national greatness agenda would be promoted by "the next big social movement."

Brooks said this national greatness agenda would reject the views of "orthodox liberals and conservatives" and end "hyper-partisanship." He added that "the coming movement may be a third party or it may support serious people in the existing two" and preserve American supremacy — that is, global interventionism.

And don't think it was — as the media has suggested — just a reckless misstep by Newt Gingrich when he criticized the Medicare reform package of Rep. Paul Ryan (R-Wis.) saying, "I don't think right-wing social engineering is any more desirable than left-wing social engineering. I don't think imposing radical change from the right or the left is a very good way for a free society to operate."

The truth is that Gingrich's rhetoric — attacking both the right and the left in the same breath — was deliberate. He was clearly portraying himself as one of the centrist advocates of American exceptionalism, echoed by other recent comments by Gingrich proudly recalling his many years as a Rockefeller Republican.

Don't be surprised — you heard it here first — that if he fails to win the GOP presidential nomination, Gingrich will be part of a breakaway centrist third party movement which has been conjured up at the highest levels of the establishment elite. AFP — alone among the media — has been reporting on this phenomenon.

Another disciple of American exceptionalism, Yale Professor David Gelernter — another Weekly Standard figure — has promoted the idea that Americanism is a modern-day incarnation of Biblical Zionism and that Americans have "a divine mission to all mankind" and that "every human being everywhere is entitled to freedom, equality and democracy."

In a book grandly entitled Americanism: The Fourth Great Western Religion, Gelernter expressed the contention that the United States (the base of what he has called American Zionism) is now charged with an imperial, even God-given, duty to remake the world, that Americanism is the creed of this global agenda, that this "Fourth Great Western Religion" is the driving force behind — and which must establish — a new planet-wide regime. He wrote:

> We are the one and only biggest boy [in the world today]. If there is to be justice in the world, America must create it. . . .We must pursue justice, help the suffering and overthrow tyrants. We must spread the creed.

This is the New World Order. And this is the underlying theme of national greatness conservatism and American exceptionalism. But there is nothing American about it. So don't be fooled by what sounds like patriotic rhetoric from the Republicans. It isn't.

Michael Collins Piper can now be heard on the Internet at michaelcollinspiper.podbean.com. He is the author of Final Judgment, the controversial "underground bestseller" documenting the collaboration of Israeli intelligence in the assassination of John F. Kennedy. He is also the author of The High Priests of War, The New Jerusalem: Zionist Power in America , The Judas Goats: The Enemy Within, Dirty Secrets: Crime, Conspiracy & Cover-Up in the 20th Century, The GOLEM: Israel's Hell Bomb, and Target: Traficant. These works can be found at America First Books and First Amendment Books: 1-888-699-NEWS. He has lectured on suppressed topics in places as diverse as Malaysia, Japan, Canada, Russia and Abu Dhabi.

(Issue #26, June 27, 2011,
AMERICAN FREE PRESS)